Mark Speaker, M.D. And His Co-Managing Optometrists Sued For Medical Malpractice

On April 19, 2023, Daniel Hanover (“Mr. Hanover”) filed his complaint against Mark Speaker, M.D., Laser and Cornea Surgery Associates, P.C., TLC The Laser Center, Inc., Alyssa Mancuso, O.D., and Steven Siegel, O.D., in the Supreme Court of New York County, State of New York, for medical malpractice arising from LASIK surgery on October 22, 2020, which was performed at TLC New York.

The complaint alleges that on October 6, 2020, plaintiff came under the care and treatment of the defendants for the purpose of screening for LASIK surgery on both eyes. The complaint alleges that Dr. Speaker allegedly departed from the standard of care by performing a LASIK surgery that was contraindicated, and Drs. Mancuso and Siegel were negligent in screening and recommending Mr. Hanover for a contraindicated LASIK surgery.

As a result of defendants’ medical malpractice and lack of skill, the complaint alleges that Mr. Hanover sustained serious permanent personal injuries.
